Partial contribution of the Keap1-Nrf2 system to cadmium-mediated metallothionein expression in vascular endothelial cells

This laboratory has found that cadmium (Cd) activates the Keap1-Nrf2 pathway, which causes enhancement of metallothionein (MT) expression through the recruitment of Nrf2 to the MT promoter, leading to cellular protection against cadmium toxicity in vascular endothelial cells.

Contact at University of Tsukuba: Prof. Y Kumagai